N Nedumaran, Singapore-born military history researcher and former Curator of 'The Battle Box' War Museum at Fort Canning, Singapore, who has over ten years of experience in publishing, has melded his literary flair and passion for military history to author the landmark book "The Forgotten Sentinels: The Sepoys of Malaya, Singapore and South-East Asia (The Founding Years: 18th to early 20th Centuries)". Launched in Singapore in 2018, the book tells the incredible story of the Sepoys, who helped shape early modern South-East Asia, creating settlements along the Malacca Straits and other key outposts in the East Indies. A masterpiece, it brings to life the epic but largely forgotten adventure of these fighting men from the Indian Subcontinent in a captivating account, through painstaking and scholarly research.
